COME THROUGH WITH THAT DOLLAR.

B EFORE Monday night the local Red Cross workers have to secure 700 more members to achieve the total quota of 1,500. COME THROUGH WITH THAT DOLLAR.

Send Nye over the top over her quota again by concerted action. Your share entails the giving of just one dollar. It won't hurt, the extraction of that dollar, and it will be made to work like a Trojan for the boys "over there." The great bulk of America's wounded fighters must be treated by the Red Cross. Already we have an army of nearly a million soldiers; next year it will probably total two million. If the war last through 1918 -and it is more likely not to end until the fall of 1919-we will have tens of thousands of casualties. They will be eared for by the Red Cross. If the Red Cross is handicapped by lack of funds our boys will suffer. We must appreciate the gravity of the situation, the urgency of an efficient relief organization.

All of us can spare a dollar; every one of us should have the inclination to part with it.

Send Nye over the top again.

PEACE TALK.

LL the capitals of Europe are buzzing with talk of peace was written off and charged to profit terms. The German peace offensive has started as scheduled and loss account. The central powers' representatives have informed the Russians that the countries are about to submit peace proposals to the allies. Russia has already addressed a curt note to them demanding to know if they are ready to enter the negotiations that are about to begin between Petrograd and Berlin. The kaiser, according to apparently authentic reports, has submitted to the Bolsheviki peace conditions of no annexations and no indemnities. If that be true, it speaks volumes as to Germany's domestic conditions.

Germany holds Riga and the Moon sound and certain other sections of Russia. Russia is manifestly a beaten nation. The kaiser desires, no doubt, to grab as much more as he can, taking advantage of the Russian disorganization. His representatives said as much when the Russian delegates first told them the conditions they wanted. "Those are the terms of a nation victorious," said the Germans in effect. It was stark fear of the anti-war party in Germany that forced the Junkers to accode. There will be much peace talk for the next few weeks; war aims will be restated and clarified. But there is little doubt, unless the conditions of France and England are far different than is generally believed on this side of the Atlantic, that they will be Eagle Shawman mine in Tuolumne ment work, same diamond drilling rejected. Certainly President Wilson acknowledged spokesman rejected. Certainly President Wilson, acknowledged spokesman of the entente, would totally reverse his position, as stated in his recent message, were he even to consider any peace overture coming out of Potsdam. cause of the large flow of gold which started from this country to Japan to cover trade balances which that country lake against us, largely as a result of a tariff law which gave, and still gives, Japan such a free hand in our market. It will be comembered that Secretary McAdoo grew nervous and put a baon gold exports from this country, although the Democrats nave long scoffed at favorable trade balances.

With these two facts in mind, it is interesting to sean a trade report from Tokio, which says that Japanese trade continues to suffer somewhat because "the ban on exports of gold from America hampers the importation of raw cotton from India and reduces Japan's cotton exports." This decline in imports of real estton from India appears to be due to the difficulty of settling Indian accounts. "As soon as the inflow of gold from America was threatened," says the report, "the Japanese exchange banks Legan to refuse drafts on Indian cotton bills and the mills were obliged to look to America for cotton or go without." And, again: "The inflow of gold boomed Japan's cotton manufactures at home and her exports to China and India."

Here is a spleudid illustration of the backfire effect of our Democratic tariff law: The trade balances accrued by Japan in the American market have been used to develop an industry which has materially weakened the hold which we had on the Far Eastern market for cotton goods. The exigencies of war, it is true, have temporarily interrupted this competition of a double aspect, but an embargo on gold cannot so handily be availed of in time of peace.

During the fiscal year ended last June our imports of Japanese goods totaled $208,000,000, an increase of 130 per cent over the last year of Republican protection-$91,600,000. Our 1917 imports from Japan exceeded those which formerly we recorded from Germany, our keenest commercial competitor, prior to the war; they were not far behind our pre-war imports from the United Kingdom. And Japanese production costs are far below those of Europe. For the past three fiscal years our total trade 7,005 dry tons (7,299 wet tons with with Japan has aggregated over $709,000,000, of which $455,000, a gross metal content of 1,320,333 000 consisted of imports. After a time Japan began to call for ounces gold and 121,619.86 pances selver a gross value of $118.210.00 payments of her trade balances against us, and daving 1916 we and a per ton value of $1837, shipped her $26,000,000, while during the eight manths' period Wandering Boy lease produced $29, ended last August she drew on us for $142,000,000 in gold.

In the meantime, as the figures of the department show and of same (182) per cent) there rethe reports from all our For Eastern consults corresponded. Japan with 2:2 per cent mointure) of ore. has been running the United States out of the market for cotton with a spec metal content of 63.215 goods. It is a grand little game, this tariff-for less than revenue or a grow value of 53.227, and a policy if we don't weaken.
